Gesori Sustander was sent by Bolivar from Guyana, with arms and warlike stores, in order to organize the friends of dependence in Cumana; communications but being open opened with that part of New Garanda by the Apur and Cumana rivers. He after most opportunity as Port on the last of October, and an once campalized, by his superior authority and influence, the disputer for supremacy previously existing among the pastel's leaders in Cassare. It was generally acknowledged as the aprovne civil and military chief and in six seconds he had not her be command a force of 20193 Infantry and infantry ready to meet the enemy. Since the entrance of Morillo into Dogota in 1816, because we almost the only part of New Grandma where the patriots of Cumana were the parents could find a safe asylum; for Saman, who succeeded Morillo in the com-mand in New Grandda, were himself a fit successful that inductive effort. By his credit and singungary conduct, it kept the prisons continually filled with patients the greater part of whom work also, after a summary trial: Almost the only place of security for the patriots of New Grandma were the plains of Cumana where the popularities were all favourable to the cause of independence and were protected from the influence of the Spanish by the nature of their country, and their regular occupation and mode of warfare. It not only served as an asylum are the patriots, but affected numerous poles from which to keep up a correspondence with the friends of the cause in the mountainous districts, into which they made frequent hostile locations. When my of them fell into the hands of the royalists, they were immediately put to death. Sa-man intended to have invaded, Dassame with a large force, has was demanded from doing so by Morillo. He, however, sent money those areas and large expectations under Barryroy and others; but such as did not know their lives, or desert during these expeditions, were always in a few weeks obliged to return to the mountain in greater loss in new, horses, and maintain than the parties whom they invaded, and who maintained against them desdeery and harassure, writing, cutting their provisions and other resources. On his arrival, Sandauer pursued a similar policy, avoiding any great engagement, has already being to preserve his army, lost any experience should belief that of Bolivar. He issued a proclamation, calling on his coun- trymen to join this situation, and placed himself in com-mation with the patient guards, who had seen up in Poyangan, on the banks of the Mugdalena, and other parts of the neighboring provinces.

Early in 1810 the cause of independence in Venezuela assumed its beyond the Apostles, like Moriblasseand the royalist divisions of La Forve, Galataki, and Morales, and advanced on San Fernando de Apur, which, although exeuty fordled, as the strongest position demanding the plains west of the Orinoco, the patriots were obliged to abandon all of destroy it by fire, as it was used to say, a face of 5000 marchic again as it said that yet needed behind the Apur and Aranco, having nearly assured their families and other values and the legom of Co- snatch, on the banks of the Orinoco. Bolters, with the patriot ministry and artillery, visited to a place of security on the opposite side of the Orinoco, such forces being useless on these plains. The whole of the patriotavaly were left under the command of the intepal Franz, who had also will him some of the British troops who had recently opposed the cause of independence and who with his followers nobly acquitted themselves of the duties-impulsed upon them. on the 52th January, and the Arinco on the 5th February, and traversed to some extent the plains beyond it is search of Bolivar and his army, of whose position he was entirely ignorant. Peas was forbidden by Bolivar to risk any serious encounter with the enemy, his before a point of number bearing and inferior to that of the royalists, but to carry on a denutory warto, and out of fuller resources. Inspired to the country and mode of warfare, the _lahners_ and other cavalty of Paris, encunishment with any baggage, could alway advance or reversed pleasies on the abstract choices: while the infanuary, artillery, and begoyage of the royalists imposed all three movements, in a country life of long grass, marshes, and creeks. The royalist cavalry alone were unable to cope with the _Bolsonor_ of Paris and they could not with safety separate from their industry and artillery without exposing either to danger from their opnants, who were always ready to take advantage of any opportunity presenting itself to attack them. Their advanced grants and frangings parties are governed by intercepted and cut off on many and at length they were unable to feed their homes at any distance from their con-campons, or even to cut grass for them, without the sup- port of their infantry. Their communication with the mountainous district was awarded by the patent jarilla parties, they began wijolly to be the ways of provisions and other supplies, and lost numbers of men and horses by schemes and other causes.

The danger and difficulty of his situation increasing daily, Morillo was obliged to retreat and having expressed a Arinco on the 16th, hustered by Repay and his folowers, he ecempat at Achagus, a position which he be obliged to evacuate for one of provision on the speech of the rainy season, and to retire to Sun Carlos. This measure was accelerated by the intelligent recetviel that Santander in Cumana had declared man amili- aided by of royalists 1500 strong on their way from Bogota to join Morilo. Santander then directed towards the whole province individuals received from him arms and other warlike stores, which he had obtained from Augustine.

About this time Sir Gregere Magreger landed at Porto Bello via a small expedition from Bogota. He was successful in obtaining possession of that places, but owing to defective discipline and want of caution they were surprised by the royalists. Their leader and a two others engaged to their ships and called; but the greater part were taken prisoners, and metode with each rigour and severity that year for of them eventually received.

On the 15th of February 1810 the congress was installed at Angusting, the proceedings help opened by Bolivar in a long-speed, preliminary of this views relative to the new constitution. You was asked president of the congress, now whose lands Bolivar resigned the authority which he had previously exercised; but it was immediately restored to him again by the event, which terminat- the settings on the 17th. Bolivar the proceeds to join the army which was assembling at Montreal, and his becuogamented from various quarters, especially by a comfortable accessible of British troops and was preparing to murd across the plains of the Apur and Casaman in order to make with smaller, and passionate into New Grandda, for the purpose of liberating it from the power of the Spirairs is very hoping left with the greater part of the enemy by watch and to check the movement of Morilo, Galatala, and Monkes. These line in repurchased of the proceedings of Bolivar, as they did not conceive it possible that would, during the rainy or winter season, attempt to cross the hundred plantains and the annoying mountains into New Grandma, but was was the first closedness by Bolivar, to undertake this arduous enterprise; and between
