They derived full greater strength from the diforgani-zing tyftem with regard to foreign nations which the French adopted, and which they extended due to the republican falt. Genesis. Their ambafador, Mr. Genet, and their combat at different parts, infiltuted political club in its own as any villages, and attempted to introduce everywhere the Janchal, profiles of affi-lation or traternization. The ambafador alto attempting to force him United States into a war with Great Britain, purerilled openly with the prenders, and at-tempted, by the publication of official notes adortified to him, to excite discounts, and to introduce a disfinition between the government and the people of the country. He was recalled by the French govern-ment, but not till his concluché had excited the riflap-prostitution of all parties in America. I would appear, however, that for a time the American government was elipted to regret the French replied with favor. Payments was readily made to the republish of the debt incurred by the United States to the last French mancure) and a France suffered great differs from a scarcity of provisions, the money was laid out in the perhado of grain and flour, which was conveyed from America to France in a lot of risk dips. It was in defence of this fleet that the French fought the naval engagement with Lord Howe on the year of June 1794, in which other ships were we defeated) but they were fasceful in conveying the transports loaded with grain into Brazil harbors. But the American government form found itself much unbarrated with regard to the part which it ought to sit towards the contacting power of Europe. George Washington was Bill at the head of affairs, having been re-elected president in December 1752, though not altogether unanimously as in the former influence. This project identifies few that the interest of his rifling country required that the blood remains diligging from the die firstrely queried of the European nations. The reflofs spirit of the French, however, on the one hand, and the expresss of Great Britain to force an universal chall combination against them on the other, rendered the predication of neutrality no caly talk. He fav a confidence of all Europe formed against France (and he could forever avoid imposing), that it must be facceful again? an unsarchy flatied with crimes and blood, inflated by choice troops, and having nothing to opple this force like new Melders and insanperienced generals, fpured by a country finalised only with a paper currency, which mail fposedly be affected. At the time time, the American commerce was greatly handled by Great Britain, whole thing, with a view to differed from, feined all wildly going. Rather with provilions, which formed the chief article of American expert. The debate which occurred in the front of representative in congress of this hate of affairs were extremely violent (and the people with our doors were greatly adjusted throughout the whole extent of the United States. The general truth was, to prefere peace and mentally (but the complaints against British were very loud, especially so the cartenfe traders who were not attached to the British interests over the chief fathers by the interruption of commerce. The antidisabilities on this occasion became still more attached to France, the costation of whofo anarchy among a virtuous people they declared they did not fear. If falsified could not be obtained from Britain, they propoded a lequattration of Britli property in America, an interruption of all commerce with Britain, and they imported, but by aming American privateers, prohibiting the conveyance of provision to the British lands, and firing on Canada, they afforded more certain means of injuring Britain, if the was relolved upon war, than any fire had with which to make republican the States. The fee-mality, on the other hand, were eager to save all connection with France, and propelled the mildelt mea-fires of emontances and negotiation with regard to England, deprecating the data of entering into a con-telf with her (and the predit appears a length to have adopted the redefinition of going, fully into the creation of this half party. He disifinal Thomas Leferfrom from the office of forestry of fans, be being of this party that had always allowed an attachment to pure republicanism, and that was at perfect molt ho-litto Great Britain. He is the famine time referred to lead Dr. Jay to England for the pursuit of negotiating with the British government. This lait gentlemain being known to be decidedly attached to the fe-familiary, indicated to the public in very clear terms the measures which the government had relfeded to adopt
